

No. 16-273

In the Supreme Court of the United States

GLOUCESTER COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD,

Petitioner

v.

G.G., BY HIS NEXT FRIEND AND MOTHER,

DEIRDRE GRIMM,

Respondent.

On Writ Of Certiorari
To The United States Court Of Appeals
For The Fourth Circuit

BRIEF AMICUS CURIAE OF CONCERNED WOMEN FOR AMERICA

in support of the Petitioner and urging reversal

Steven W. Fitschen

Counsel of Record for Amicus Curiae

The National Legal Foundation

2224 Virginia Beach Blvd., Ste. 204

Virginia Beach, VA 23454

(757) 463-6133

nlf@nlf.net

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page:
TABLE OF AUTHORITIES	ii
INTEREST OF AMICUS CURIAE	1
SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT	1
ARGUMENT	2
I. WHETHER INTERPRETED IN TERMS OF TEXT OR OF PURPOSE, “SEX” MEANS “PHYSIOLOGICAL SEX” IN TITLE IX.	2
II. A KEY PURPOSE OF TITLE IX IS TO PROTECT THE PRIVACY AND SAFETY OF STUDENTS, AND THAT PURPOSE WOULD BE THWARTED BY THE FOURTH CIRCUIT’S DECISION.	3
CONCLUSION	10

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases:	Page(s):
G.G. ex rel. Grimm v. Gloucester Cty. Sch. Bd. , 822 F.3d 709 (4th Cir. 2016).....	4-5
Gonzalez v. Thaler , 132 S. Ct. 641 (2012).....	2
Mayers v. Ridley , 465 F.2d 630 (D.C. Cir. 1972).....	3
McQuiggin v. Perkins , 133 S. Ct. 1924 (2013)	2
Wyeth v. Levine , 555 U.S. 555 (2009)	2
 Statutes:
Title IX	passim
 Other sources:
http://abc7ny.com/news/man-seen-reaching-under-stall-with-phone-in-nj-target-dressing-room/1508431/	8
http://www.10news.com/news/national/transgender-woman-caught-filming-in-target-changing-room	8
http://www.fox25boston.com/news/police-searching-for-man-caught-peeping-in-revere-target/341209148	9 http://www.kgw.com/news/local/washington/seattle-man-in-womens-locker-room-cites-gender-rule/45248512.....9-10

<https://corporate.target.com/article/2016/04/target-stands-inclusivity> 8

<https://www.lifesitenews.com/news/man-strips-in-front-ofgirls-in-swimming-pool-locker-says-transgender-law-a> 10

<https://www.rainn.org/statistics/victims-sexual-violence>..... 6

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tg-MAMvklpE>..... 9

John F. Manning, What Divides Textualists from Purposivists? 106 Colum. L.Rev. 70 (2006)2-3

Penny Young Nance, Feisty and Feminine, (2016) 5

INTEREST OF *AMICUS CURIAE*¹

Concerned Women for America (“CWA”) is the largest public policy women’s organization in the United States with members from all 50 states. Through our grassroots organization, CWA encourages policies that strengthen women and families and advocates for the traditional virtues that are central to America’s cultural health and welfare.

CWA actively promotes legislation, education, and policymaking consistent with its philosophy. Its members are people whose voices are often overlooked—average, middle-class American women whose views are not represented by the powerful elite. CWA is profoundly committed to protecting the privacy and safety of its members and its members’ children. This commitment is driven in part by the tragic experiences of several of CWA’s leaders.

SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT

Whether this Court interprets the word “sex” in Title IX and its implementing regulation under a textualist approach or a purposivist approach, its meaning is “physiological sex,” and does not include “gender identity.” Examining Title IX’s purposes reinforces the textual analysis, but it also demonstrates that the Fourth Circuit’s definition of “sex” destroys the very privacy and safety protections Title IX was enacted to create.

¹ The parties have consented to the filing of this Brief. A copy of the email granting consent by Counsel for the Respondent accompanies this Brief. The letter of consent from Counsel for the Petitioner has been lodged with this Court. No counsel for any party has authored this Brief in whole or in part, and no counsel or party made a monetary contribution intended to fund the preparation or submission of this Brief. No person or entity has made any monetary contribution to the preparation or submission of this Brief, other than the Amicus Curiae, its members, and its Counsel.

ARGUMENT

I. WHETHER INTERPRETED IN TERMS OF TEXT OR OF PURPOSE, “SEX” MEANS “PHYSIOLOGICAL SEX” IN TITLE IX.

This case turns on the statutory interpretation of a single word, “sex.”² Thus, the question of how statutes ought to be interpreted arises. In some cases, a textualist approach and a purposivist (or legal process) approach to interpretation will produce different results.³ Not so here.

Instead, this is one of those cases in which the textualist approach and the purposivist approach yield the same result.⁴ Here, under either approach, ² Your Amicus agrees with the Petitioner (hereinafter “Gloucester County”) that this Court should consider the statutory interpretation issue first. Pet’r Br. 24-25. This is so because should this Court reach the Auer question, it should simply conclude that the Fourth Circuit erred in finding Auer deference applicable. See Pet’r Br. 43-63.

³ See, e.g., Gonzalez v. Thaler, 132 S. Ct. 641, 663, n.7 (2012) (Scalia, J., dissenting); Wyeth v. Levine, 555 U.S. 555, 601-04 (2009) (Thomas, J., concurring in the judgment).

⁴ See, e.g., McQuiggin v. Perkins, 133 S. Ct. 1924, 1941–42 (2013) (Scalia, J., dissenting) (quoting this Court’s unanimous decision in Young v. United States, 535 U.S. 43 (2002) and citing the discussion of Young in John F. Manning, What Divides Textualists from Purposivists? 106 Colum.

“sex” must mean “physiological sex” and cannot be stretched to include “gender identity.” This is so because, as Gloucester County states, these conclusions are compelled by “the text [and the] structure[] and history of Title IX and its implementing regulation.” Pet’r Br. 2, 25.

II. A KEY PURPOSE OF TITLE IX IS TO PROTECT THE PRIVACY AND SAFETY OF STUDENTS, AND THAT PURPOSE WOULD BE THWARTED BY THE FOURTH CIRCUIT’S DECISION.

Without using the terms, Gloucester County argues both interpretive approaches and demonstrates that the result is the same under both. See especially sections I.A. and I.B. of Petitioner’s Brief. As to the purpose of Title IX, Gloucester County correctly and repeatedly notes—often via quotations in the legislative history from Senator Bayh and Representative Thompson—that in addition to ending discrimination against women, Title IX’s other key purpose was to protect the privacy of students of both sexes. See, e.g., Pet’r Br. 1, 5-9, 20-22, 32, 35, 40. This, of course, reinforces the textual analysis of “sex” as “physiological sex” (upon which your Amicus does not elaborate). It also demonstrates Title IX’s purpose by noting the intent of the actual “reasonable legislators” who enacted

L.Rev. 70, 81–82, and n. 42 (2006). Courts sometimes explicitly state that they would reach the same result under either a textualist or a purposivist approach. See, e.g., Mayers v. Ridley, 465 F.2d 630, 634 (D.C. Cir. 1972).

Title IX.⁵

Furthermore, privacy concerns are linked to safety concerns, as Judge Niemeyer noted below:

- Across societies and throughout history, it has been commonplace and universally accepted to separate public restrooms, locker rooms, and shower facilities on the basis of biological sex in order to address privacy and safety concerns arising from the biological differences between males and females. An individual has a legitimate and important interest in bodily privacy such that his or her nude or partially nude body, genitalia, and other private parts are not exposed to persons of the opposite biological sex. Indeed, courts have consistently recognized that the need for such privacy is inherent in the nature and dignity of humankind.

G.G. ex rel. Grimm v. Gloucester Cty. Sch. Bd., 822 F.3d 709, 734 (4th Cir.) (Niemeyer, J., concurring in part & dissenting in part).

- Thus, Title IX’s allowance for the separation, based on sex, of living facilities, restrooms, locker rooms, and shower facilities rests on the universally accepted concern for bodily privacy that is founded on the biological differences between the sexes. This privacy concern is also linked to safety concerns that could arise from sexual responses prompted by students' exposure to the private body parts of students of the other biological sex. Indeed, the School Board cited these very reasons for its adoption of the policy, explaining that it separates restrooms and locker rooms to promote the privacy and safety of minor children, pursuant to its "responsibility to its students to ensure their privacy while engaging in personal bathroom functions, disrobing, dressing, and showering outside of the presence of members of the opposite sex. . . ."

⁵ Purposivism’s “reasonable legislators” can, of course, be real or hypothetical. See, e.g., Stephen Breyer, Active Liberty: Interpreting Our Democratic Constitution 88 (2005).

Id. at 735 (emphasis original).

As the nation's largest public policy women's organization, your Amicus is vitally concerned that Title IX's privacy and safety protections for female (and male) students not be stripped away. This concern is one with a personal component for some of our leaders. As discussed in her book, Feisty and Feminine, Concerned Women for America's President, Penny Young Nance, was the victim of a physical assault that would have been a sexual assault but for the arrival of a good Samaritan at just the right moment.⁶ Because of that experience, Mrs. Nance has "a deep empathy for women who have been sexually violated in any way [and] feel[s] a responsibility to help them"—a responsibility that she carries out, in part, through Concerned Women for America. And unfortunately, another of our leaders also has a personal commitment to addressing this issue: she was videotaped

⁶ The entire account can be found at Penny Young Nance, Feisty and Feminine, 35-38 (2016). The quotation in the above paragraph comes from page 38.

in a restroom.⁷

Nor are these women the victims of isolated incidents. Sadly, the number of documented intrusions on women's privacy and safety continues to climb. We urge this Court not to discount these accounts and the unique perspective and privacy concerns of women victims of sexual abuse. Their experience is far more common than might be expected. According to the Rape, Abuse & Incest National Network (RAINN), the nation's largest anti-sexual violence organization, an estimated 17.7 million American women had been victims of attempted or completed rape as of 1998.⁸ One out of every six American women has been the victim of rape or attempted rape. On average, there is a sexual assault every 98 seconds in the United States.

The statistics are even more alarming for young people, which is especially relevant to this case. The majority of sexual assault victims are under 30 years old. Those aged 18-34 are at the highest risk, comprising 54% of sexual assault victims. Those aged 12-17 comprise another 15% of the victims. Thus, these two age groups account for a disturbing 69% of the victims.

As we know, these experiences do not only affect the victims, but their close family and friends will also be significantly affected. Thus, the number of people with reasonable, real life, experience-driven concerns about their privacy and safety in such sensitive spaces as bathrooms, locker rooms, showers, and overnight accommodations is much higher than the number of sexual assault victims alone.

⁷ Your Amicus does not provide documentation for this violation here, since this woman has not publicly disclosed this event. However, your Amicus is well aware of its duty of honesty and candor to this Court.

⁸ This and the following statistics come from RAINN's website: <https://www.rainn.org/statistics/victims-sexual-violence> (last visited Jan. 9, 2017).

Your Amicus has no desire to present a long list of such incidents, which can easily be dismissed as a parade of horrors when specifically placed in the context of the transgender bathroom controversy. Yet, simply stating that these intrusions continue to climb does not do justice to the problem.

Thus, your Amicus offers here a just three such incidents in summary fashion. Reports (and actual or attempted debunking of reports) of these incidents can be problematic, in that those on opposite sides of the transgender rights debate may be inclined to accept unsubstantiated reports or to downplay or deny substantiated reports. Thus, your Amicus offers incidents reported by local broadcast or print media, since 1) such reports are generally based on police involvement and, thus, can be easily confirmed or denied (although, of course, such broadcasts do not necessarily (although sometimes they do) indicate the ultimate outcome of police investigations or criminal prosecution); and 2) such reports—at least in your Amicus's judgment—are more likely to be reliable than those offered or rebutted by advocates on either side of the issue. Perhaps the easiest source of such reports—and the one your Amicus will draw from—deals with the highly-publicized April 2016 decision of Target stores to allow transgender customers and employees to use bathrooms and fitting rooms of their choice.⁹ That these incidents are not from public schools does not undermine the privacy and safety concerns implicated by the Fourth Circuit’s decision.

Synopses of three incidences that have occurred from the time of Judge Niemeyer’s opinion cited above (and of course, the majority opinion to the contrary) and this Court’s granting of certiorari follow:

- “A transgender woman was arrested in Idaho on [July 12, 2016] after she allegedly filmed a woman in a Target changing room . . . [The suspect] admitted to making other videos at Target and said she makes the videos for ‘the same reason men look at pornography.’”¹⁰
- “[I]n Brick, New Jersey . . . a man was seen taking pictures of women changing in the stall next to him in a unisex Target dressing room [M]en and women [are] using what are essentially dressing stalls next to each other.”¹¹
- Similarly, in Revere, Massachusetts, on June 12, 2016, a man was caught “peeping inside a unisex changing room. The man was apparently in one of the stalls and peered into the next stall where a young female was changing.”¹²

⁹ See <https://corporate.target.com/article/2016/04/target-stands-inclusivity> (last visited Jan. 8, 2017).

¹⁰ Source: KGTV, an ABC and Scripts affiliate in San Diego, CA. <http://www.10news.com/news/naional/transgender-woman-caught-filming-in-target-changing-room> (last visited Jan. 8, 2017).

¹¹ Source: WABC, an ABC affiliate in New York, NY. <http://abc7ny.com/news/man-seen-reaching-under-stall-with-phone-in-nj-target-dressing-room/1508431/> (last visited Jan. 8, 2017).

Again, such reports could be multiplied. Further, innumerable other reports that are more attenuated as to cause and effect could be added. And, as noted above, this does not even take into account the fears of women and girls who have been victims of sexual assault in the past or the fears of parents of such victims. Stories of these fears include those of a woman who as a ten-year-old swimmer was abused by her coach; a child abused since infancy who as a college athlete could not bring herself to fully disrobe to shower in a locker room; a woman who was abused and raped between the ages of eight and ten; and an adoptive mother whose young daughter has had numerous accidents at school because she cannot bring herself to use the bathrooms due to memories of abuse.¹³

¹² Source: WFXT, a Cox Media affiliate in Boston, MA. <http://www.fox25boston.com/news/police-searching-for-man-caught-peeping-in-revere-target/341209148> (last visited Jan. 8, 2017).

¹³ Your Amicus has chosen to use a source for these accounts that does not meet the criterion for its prior reports (in that it is provided by a public interest law firm that litigates this issue, Alliance Defending Freedom, not local media) because your Amicus believes that this Court is well able to discount the advocacy elements and understand the non-advocacy content demonstrating the real fear experienced by sexual assault victims. This source is a video available at <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tg-MAMvklpLE> (last visited Jan. 8, 2017). The one secondhand account in the video (concerning an incident at a Washington state locker room at the 7:38-9:04 marks) is documented in multiple places. See, e.g., <http://www.kgw.com/>

Your Amicus strongly believes that the protections offered women through Title IX—protections that are plain, based on both the text and the purpose of Title IX—ought not be eliminated based on a false and untenable reading of the word “sex.”

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons and for other reasons stated in Gloucester County’s Brief, this Court should reverse the judgment of the Fourth Circuit.

Respectfully submitted,
this 10th day of January, 2017,

Steven W. Fitschen

Counsel of Record for Amicus Curiae
2224 Virginia Beach Blvd., Ste. 204
Virginia Beach, VA 23454
(757) 463-6133
nlf@nlf.net

news/local/washington/seattle-man-in-womens-locker-room-cites-gender-rule/45248512 (last visited Jan. 8, 2017); and <https://www.lifesitenews.com/news/man-strips-in-front-of-girls-in-swimming-pool-locker-says-transgender-law-a> (last visited Jan. 8, 2017).