

Title: Intern, SCOTUSblog — Remote (U.S.)

About the position

Are you a law student who follows the Supreme Court as closely as others follow college football? If so, a SCOTUSblog internship may be right for you.

SCOTUSblog is hiring an intern to help with court coverage and website maintenance in hopes of better serving its audience. You will help the existing team track current cases and update the site to ensure that court watchers find exactly what they're looking for whenever they visit us. Strong attention to detail is a must, as is a willingness to manage some unglamorous (but still essential) technical tasks.

What you'll do

- Case coverage: Help SCOTUSblog's writers and editors cover some of the most prominent cases at the court.
- Website maintenance: Survey and repair case pages from previous Supreme Court terms.
- Color coding: Assess and then color code briefs filed in current cases before the court.
- Content management: Help manage SCOTUSblog's Interim Docket blog.
- Events support: Assist with virtual and in-person SCOTUSblog events, as needed.

You might be a fit if you have

- A passion for the Supreme Court's work.
- Exceptional attention to detail.
- Calm, proactive project management in a remote environment.
- Experience with Wordpress or website management in general.

Compensation & logistics

- Stipend: $3,000

- Period: 10 weeks with the possibility of an extension
- Location: Remote
- Schedule: 20 hours per week

To apply

Please email scotusblog@thedispatch.com with the subject line “SCOTUSblog Internship” and provide:

- A brief cover letter expressing your interest in the position and providing your qualifications.
- A resume.
